Provenance

These papers are part of the Walker Art Center's institutional records. They were stored on the roof after Martin Friedman's retirement in 1990. Martin Friedman continues to send documentation to be added to his collection.

Biography

Martin Friedman was born in Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania in 1925. He attended Taylor-Allerdice High School, Pittsburgh, and studied art at the Carnegie Institute of Technology in 1940. In 1943 he attended the University of Pennsylvania but his studies were interrupted by the war. He entered the ROTC naval program in 1944 and was stationed at the Great Lakes Naval Academy in Illinois. After the war, Friedman went to the University of Washington where he studied anthropology, art history and painting and received a Bachelor of Arts degree. His education continued at the University of California Los Angeles where he studied painting with Stanton MacDonald-Wright and received a Masters of Arts. While attending UCLA he met his future wife, Mildred (Mickey) and they were married in 1949. After graduate school, Friedman taught high school and college art in the Los Angeles area for seven years. While in Los Angeles he was influenced by Karl With, director of the Modern Institute, Beverly Hills, California. In 1956 he was a fellow at the Brooklyn Museum of Art where he concentrated on the art of the Congo. He also did graduate work at Columbia University in 1956. In 1957 he received a Belgian American Foundation Fellowship and studied at the Musee Royale du Congo Belge in Brussels. In 1958, Walker Art Center director, H. Harvard Arnason, approached Friedman for the senior curator position at the Walker. In 1959 he received a fellowship in American Art from the University of Minnesota. From 1959 to 1960, Friedman was acting director of the Walker Art Center while Arnason taught art history at the University of Hawaii, Honolulu. In 1961 Friedman won a Ford Foundation fellowship but he had to turn it down when he was appointed director of the Walker Art Center that same year. Arnason left the Walker to become vice president of the Guggenheim Museum.

Friedman began his tenure as director intent on developing a stronger link with the public through special exhibitions, education programs, lectures, films, music and dance. Working with a limited budget, Friedman sought to acquire affordable artwork by living artists at the beginning of their career. He fostered relationships with many artists who are now well represented in the Walker's permanent collection, including, Frank Stella, Don Flavin, Donald Judd, Claes Oldenburg, Isamu Noguchi, Mark Di Suvero, Roy Lichtenstein, David Hockney, Deborah Butterfield, and Louise Nevelson. Likewise he fostered relationships with several performing artists including Merce Cunningham and Trisha Brown.

In 1969, Mickey Friedman joined the Walker staff as curator of Design and editor of Design Quarterly continuing the long established tradition of design programming at the Walker. During the Friedmans' tenure, the Walker organized several design shows including New Learning Spaces and Places, 1974 ; De Stijl , 1982 ; and Tokyo: Form and Spirit , 1986.

Also in 1969, the old Walker Art Center building was torn down. The new building designed by Edward Larrabee Barnes, opened May 15, 1971. At the time of the opening the new Walker Art Center received many honors and was regarded as one of the best museums for the display of contemporary works of art. Concurrently to the building construction, Martin Friedman began discussions with the City of Minneapolis about the use of the adjacent parkland known as the Armory Gardens. The culmination of his efforts would be the Minneapolis Sculpture Garden.

In 1986 for his 25th anniversary as director, 86 former board members commissioned a work by Roy Lichtenstein, entitled Salute to Painting (1985-1986). The sculpture was donated to the Walker Art Center in Friedman's honor. In 1989 Friedman was awarded the National Medal of Arts from President George Bush. Martin and Mickey Friedman retired November 1, 1990 and moved to New York City. At the time of his retirement, Martin Friedman's tenure was the longest of any museum director in any one museum.

Scope and Content

The Martin Friedman papers, 1961 - 1990, is the third series in the record group Director's Office. (see also Series 1 Daniel S. Defenbacher papers, 1940-1950, Series 2 H. Harvard Arnason papers, 1951-1960). Within this series are subseries: Alphabetical Files; Artists Correspondence; Chronological Files; Buildings and Grounds; Personal.

The subseries Alphabetical Files is the most comprehensive part of collection. This subseries measures 28.5 linear feet (57 boxes), and includes letters, memoranda and minutes on the day to day operation of the Walker, as well as, long range plans and projects. This subseries also includes Friedman's professional activities such as lectures, board and committee minutes, and correspondence. The files are arranged alphabetically by subject and then chronologically by year. Within this subseries will be repeating folder names for each year, these include: Activities (Lectures and Juries), Acquisitions Impossible and Possible, Correspondence(General), Dealers and Galleries, Exhibitions Impossible and Possible, Government, Inquiries, Museums, Schools, Travel, T.B. Walker Foundation, and Walker Art Center Board of Directors. In addition, each department or programming area is listed alphabetically by name, these include: Center Arts Council, Contemporary Arts Group, Design, Design Quarterly, Development, Education, Film, Film/Video, Library, Media, Membership, Performing Arts, Public Relations, and Sales and Rental Gallery. Within each folder documents are filed chronologically. Where folder names include A - Z, folders are organized alphabetically by bundle and chronologically within each bundle, these include: Acquisitions, Activities, Correspondence (General), Dealers and Galleries, Exhibitions, Museums and Schools. Organizations are filed alphabetically by name for example: Association of Art Museum Directors, Ford Foundation, and Spring Hill Conference Center.

The Alphabetical Files are rich in documentation that charts the progress of the Walker Art Center from a respected regional art center to a leading international contemporary arts museum. Friedman focused the Walker Art Center's resources on exhibiting and collecting young artists, for example, in the exhibition London: The New Scene, 1965, the Walker presented young British artists including Bernard Cohen, David Hockney and William Tucker (see: Correspondence A - Z 1965), and acquired Joe Tilson's Look! (1964) from the show. While Friedman worked with younger artists, he also continued to build programs around more established modern artists, such as in the lecture program Symbolism in Modern Art 1962. For this lecture Friedman corresponded with Elaine de Kooning for insights into Willem de Kooning's Women paintings.(see Activities: Lecture: "Symbolism in Modern Art: Willem de Kooning's Women Paintings": de Kooning, Elaine 1962). He also organized major international exhibitions throughout his career beginning with the American entry for the 1963 Sao Paulo Bienal featuring Adolph Gottlieb. (see: Artists Correspondence: Gottlieb 1965-1967 for Gottlieb correspondence). The Alphabetical Files reveal Friedman's focus and energies of the time, whether he is corresponding with a dealer or museum colleague his correspondence will often give insights into current projects, the Sao Paulo exhibition is a good example (see: Correspondence E 1963 for a description of the exhibition). He also discusses his interests and ideas for future projects with New York Times critic, Hilton Kramer throughout his tenure (see: Correspondence K 1961-1990).

Friedman worked closely with other programming areas particularly Performing Arts and Film/Video, two departments that previously were run by volunteers (see: Center Arts Council, 1961-1971). Friedman professionalized these activities creating curatorial positions for Performing Arts in 1970 when he appointed Suzanne Weil coordinator; and Film, with the appointment of John Hanhardt in 1973. Suzanne Weil brought to the Walker innovative artists particularly dancers, including Trisha Brown, Twyla Tharpe and Merce Cunningham (see: Performing Arts: Suzanne Weil 1976 for description of programming growth). The Film Department was solidified when Edmund and Evelyn R. Ruben donated their unique collection of film prints known as the Ruben Film Study Collection in 1973(see: Film WAC: Edmund R. and Evelyn Ruben Film Study Collection: Donation, 1973).

During the Seventies and Eighties Friedman was particularly interested in new media projects. Several innovative programs were developed, including: the New Learning Museum, 1979-1981 (see New Learning Museum Program WAC: Meanings of Modernism, 1978-1981); the Monitor Program (see: Media WAC: Monitor Program, 1981-1984); and Videotape Pilot Projects (see: Videotape Program WAC 1974-1975, see also Audiotape Program WAC: "Artist Talks About His Art" Pilot Project, 1967).

Friedman worked very closely with the Walker Art Center Board of Directors and the T.B. Walker Foundation. The Board of Directors is ultimately responsible for the direction of the Walker Art Center including, acquisitions, use of building and grounds, fundraising, and developing community partners. The board also has a very hands-on approach, for example, the Board of Directors was responsible for all fundraising activities until 1977 when Robert Sain became the first Development director. The Acquisitions Committee of the Board of Directors is responsible of outlining the direction of the Permanent Collection (see: Walker Art Center Board of Directors: Acquisitions Committee, 1969 - 1984). Also in these files will be correspondence and minutes concerning the building and the grounds of the Walker Art Center. Although the day-to-day progress of the new building is maintained in the Building and Grounds Files, the Board of Directors files provide the vision for project. (See: Walker Art Center Board of Directors and The T.B. Walker Foundation, 1965-1971 for building information).

The Board and Foundation files chart the development of the Walker from a private institution to a public non-profit organization. From 1925 to 1976, the T.B. Walker Foundation owned the building and grounds as well as most of the available funds for the museum. Due to changing tax laws, both boards decided it was in the museum's best interest to dissolve the ties to the T.B. Walker Foundation. (see: Walker Art Center Board of Directors and T.B. Walker Foundation, 1974-1976). In order to insure the future of the museum, the Foundation donated 11.8 million dollars to start an endowment fund for the museum. After 1976, several Foundation board members were appointed to the Walker Art Center Board of Directors.

During the course of his directorship Friedman was an active member of several arts organizations including the National Endowment for the Arts, for which he serves on several committees and panels, including the 20th anniversary celebration committee in 1985 (see Government: National Endowment for the Arts, 1966-1990), Association of American Museum Directors, for which he is president in 1978 (see: Association of Art Museum Directors 1963 - 1984), American Federation of Arts (see: American Federation of Arts, 1962 - 1985), and American Association of Museums (see: American Association of Museums, 1963-1983). He serves on several boards and committees including the National Collection of Fine Art (see: Museums: Smithsonian Institution: National Collection of Fine Arts: Commissions 1968 - 1972), the Nicollet Mall Advisory Board (see Nicollet Mall Dedication: Calder, Alexander 1967), and the National Council for the Arts which oversees the National Endowment for the Arts (see: Government: National Council for the Arts, 1965-1985). Throughout his career, Friedman stood up for artists rights, including giving testimony during the Robert Mapplethorpe controversy in 1990 (see Government: National Endowment for the Arts: Robert Mapplethorpe Controversy: Testimony 1990).

The Artists Correspondence subseries measures 3.5 linear feet (6 boxes) and includes original letters from artists. The majority of letters from 1961 to 1985 were originally filed in the Alphabetical Files. From 1985 to 1990, several attempts were made by various secretaries to create an Artists Correspondence series in some cases artists letters were removed from older files destroying the original order. The Artists Correspondence subseries now reflects both the original order of the artist letter and the desire to create a separate artist file. The artist letters have been separated placed in mylar and filed alphabetically in chronological sequence. A copy of each letter exists in the original file. Both the copy and original have been notated with original location and current location. This method ensures the safety of the original letter and the contextual materials surrounding it, while allowing researchers to locate artist correspondence quickly. The correspondence is varied and at times insightful, from the humorous postcards of Ant Farm (see: Ant Farm 1971, 1976) to the project descriptions of Paul Thek. (see: Thek, Paul 1973-1976).

Completed container lists exist for both Alphabetical Files and Artists Correspondence. For Alphabetical Files see A-MF for Artists Correspondence see AR-MF.

Subseries Chronological Files measure 24 linear feet (12 boxes) and are copies of letters sent by Martin Friedman. The originals are in the Alphabetical Files. The Chronological Files are arranged chronologically by date. These files have not been processed as they are duplicates of the Alphabetical Files.

Subseries Building and Grounds Files measure 4 linear feet (2 boxes) and include documentation on: Walker Art Center new building construction and Guthrie Theater renovation 1969-1971; Walker Addition 1984; and Minneapolis Sculpture Garden 1976-1988. These files have not been processed as yet, but will be in the future.

Subseries Personal Files measure 4 linear feet and include documentation on Martin Friedman's personal projects outside of his duties as the Walker Art Center director or professional obligations as a museum director. These files are primarily correspondence concerning his book on Charles Sheeler published in 1976 and have not been processed but will be in the future.
